JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN ATTACKED. House of Commons.

Discussion of the colonial office vote led to a spirited debate in the house of commons yesterday, in the course of which liberals again aired most of the old charges against the colonial secretary, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, and indulged in criticisms of the war in South Africa. Finally Sir Wilfrid Lawson moved a reduction of Mr. Chamberlain's salary as a mark of censure of his policy.

Mr. Chamberlain, replying, welcomed the issue raised by the motion, which, he de-clared, meant that the war was wrong, and issue raised by the motion, which, he declared, meant that the war was wrong, and that consequently annexation of the South African republics was wrong and their independence should be restored to them. In his opinion, however, the war was just and righteous and should not be judged by its consequences in loss of life. John Bright had defended the civil war in America as just and righteous, although the loss of life was as thousands to units as compared with South Africa.

Mr. Chamberlain proceeded to combat the liberal assertion that the Afrikander bund had remained loyal and ought to be consulted with regard to the settlement. He charged the radicals with condoning rebellion. The policy of the government, however, was not vindictive, and instead of subjecting the rebels to the death penalty or imprisonment, it only proposed to disarm them politically for ten years. As regards the future, there would not be an indefinite military occupation. At the earliest moment a civil administration would be established. The government desired to give the states at the earliest possible moment a system of self-government similar to that enjoyed by the other Ritish colonies. system of self-government similar to that enjoyed by the other British colonies. He believed the hope of a reaction at home was prolonging the war. Therefore, in the interests of the country, he hoped it would be made clear that the government had substantially a united house and people behind it. it.

ground for him to be suspected in all his actions.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the liberal leader in the house of commons, declared that Mr. Chamberiain had prostituted the occasion for the purpose of making an electioneering speech.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury, and government leader in the house, moved closure, which was carried, 169 ayes to 100 noes. The motion on reduction of Mr. Chamberlain's salary was then lost, 208 noes to 52 ayes.

"This message," said Secretary Hay, after he had read Conger's transmitted message, "does not necessarily contradict the messages supposed to have been sent by Mr. Conger July 18 in response to my message to him. The state of affairs represented in this message of the 4th may still prevail. I hardly think Capt. Thomas would have transmitted the message to the Navy Department unless he were sure of its authenticity.

"Neither of the messages, however, changes the situation. Whether they are genuine or not, the course of this government—the course now being pursued—must be the same. The State Department is acting on the supposition that it has heard nothing from Minister Conger since June 12. China is at peace with the world, so far as the official facts are concerned. As yet no cause for war has been proved. Russia is not at war with China.

"It must not be thought that the only outcome of the present situation is a war, even if the worst that has been published is true. There is always a possibility of avoiding war. If the worst feared proves to be true there may still be reparation without war.
